From September 2012 onwards, the VU University Amsterdam (VU) and the University of Amsterdam (UvA) offer a joint Master’s in Archaeology via the Amsterdam Centre for Ancient Studies and Archaeology (ACASA). This pooling of resources means you will have the choice between various course packages, as well as the opportunity to specifically prepare yourself for a professional career, be it in commercial archaeology, policy archaeology or academic research. You will attend lectures at both the UvA and the VU.

The Master’s curriculum of Archaeology consists of three programmes. Each of these has its own core courses; on top of that you can choose from a wide variety of other courses offered by ACASA. Together this helps you to design a curriculum that corresponds to what you think is best for an internationally oriented career.

All courses are taught in English.

Doel vak
Students who will have successfully completed this course will:
1. Have acquired an in-depth understanding of the various roles of material remains with regards to the perceptions about the past by wider audiences.
2. Have developed a clear insight in the past practices and future challenges of museum collecting.
3. Have a clear view on the roles of institutions and stakeholders in the ways the material past is presented.
4. Have acquired expert knowledge about the challenges of modern theories, trends and (digital) methodologies for archaeological collections.
5. Have developed skills to make, assess and evaluate material and/or digital presentations about the past.

Inhoud vak
For centuries, archaeological collections have served to present the past. Archaeological museums reconstruct and visualize national, local and regional histories, or, alternatively, display material heritage from different parts of the world. Archaeological collecting is increasingly subject to changing regulations and (legal) restrictions. Moreover, there are new ideas about the ways in which people perceive and identify with the past. Also, we see an enormous influence of ICT on museum collecting, registration and presentation. As a result, the role of archaeological museums in collecting and presenting the material past is increasingly problematic and currently a hot issue in academic and professional debates.

This course will be about the relations between changing practices of archaeological collecting and the ways in which the past is presented to wider audiences. We will address the challenges posed to archaeological museums in the modern world by looking at the intricate interplay between material remains (archaeological artefacts, collections), people (collectors, curators and a differentiated public), techniques (ICT) and institutions (museums, universities). The collections and presentations of the Allard Pierson Museum will be used actively during the course.

Onderwijsvorm
The course will have two sessions a week over a period of six weeks: a lecture session at the beginning of the week and a seminar. The lecture classes will have a theoretical and reflective character. After an introductory class, the lectures will cover the history and changing practice of collecting, the role of material remains in the perceptions of the past and the challenges for archaeological museums. The seminar sessions will have a practical character and will take place in the Allard Pierson Museum. Students will actively interact with museum’s collections and exhibitions. The exhibition Keys to Rome will be used as a case study. Students will explore the various ways in which archaeological collections are constituted and will be supervised in creating archaeological exhibitions and visualizations. Presence to all seminars is compulsory.
Contact hours: Total 4 hours: 2 hours lecture class; 2 hours seminar

Toetsvorm
The course will be assessed by a written exam on the lecture classes and the associated literature from the electronic reader. The exam will constitute 40% of the final grade. In case the exam is not passed, a re-sit for the exam will be possible at the end of the semester. The seminar part of the course will be assessed by a practical assignment in small groups (2-3 people). The grade for the assignment is 60% of the final grade. Individual grades will be given for the group assignment, based on the final output, a short overview of each participant’s contribution and the participation in the seminars. In case the assignment is not graded as sufficient, an (individual) new assignment must be chosen and re-submitted before the end of the semester. Both the exam and the practical assignment must be graded as sufficient in order to pass the course successfully.

Literatuur
Compulsory literature will be made available through an electronic reader on the Blackboard

Doelgroep
Accessible for MA students in all Archaeology programs, Classics and Ancient Civilizations, Museum Studies, Heritage Studies and Art History

This module is taught at the UvA by mw.dr. M.H.E. Hoijtink (coordinator), dr. G.J.M. van Wijngaarden, drs. R. van Beek, dr. W. Hupperetz (UvA subject code 140412206Y). Module registration at the UvA is required.
Aristocratic Residences in the Medieval Low Countries

Doel vak
After this module the student
- has knowledge of the development of aristocratic residences middle ages in northwestern Europe
- is able to evaluate historical as well as archaeological sources concerning aristocratic residences
- knows to formulate research questions regarding the subject.

Inhoud vak
The development of castles, palaces and noble houses has always been a central issue in the fields of both history and archaeology. In this module the efforts of both disciplines will be combined to evaluate the development of elite residences from the post-Carolingian period into the end of the Middle Ages. Both disciplines deal with sources from the past, but of different nature and with their own focus and bias. In this module written as well as material sources are used to come to an understanding of the past. Some of the following questions will be addressed in the module. Why and how did castles emerge and who were the aristocrats who erected these building? Where did the builders of Burgundian palaces find their inspiration and what do archaeologists recover of these buildings? What do we know about the daily life of the residents of castle and palaces and which object can be linked to an aristocratic lifestyle?

Onderwijsvorm
2 x 2 hours seminar a week, one or more short excursions

Toetsvorm
Essays, presentations and final paper

Overige informatie
This module is taught at the UvA by dr A.A.A. Verhoeven (coordinator) and dr M.J.M. Damen (both UvA)(UvA subject code 140412196Y). Module registration at the UvA is required.

Biography of Landscape
Doel vak

- Understanding the development of “biographical approaches” to landscape research in geography and archaeology from 1979 onwards
- Understanding different concepts of authorship and “layerdness” in landscapes
- Knowledge of different geographical, anthropological, historical and archaeological perspectives on the long-term history and temporality of landscapes
- Competence in working with these theoretical concepts in specific case studies, thereby developing interesting and useful narratives for the present-day (public) understanding and transformation of landscapes
- Competence in combining and integrating different sources (archaeological, historical, art historical) in the study of landscapes

Inhoud vak

In heritage practices the disciplines which are dealing with culture historical heritage (archaeology, history of architecture and historical geography), are confronted more and more with each others knowledge in cases of advising about management, preservation and reuse of the historical landscape. The term 'landscape biography' can offer a common approach. In the lectures the term will be explained in a theoretical concept and placed in the perspectives of the three disciplines that were mentioned above. Analyzing a number texts the students get acquainted with differing interpretations of the term and they learn to practice it in a topic that is chosen from their own discipline.

Onderwijsvorm

Seminar and discussions; 2 hours a week

Toetsvorm

Assignments, discussions, obliged attendance

Literatuur

Doel vak
The course aims to provide students with a critical knowledge and understanding of the theoretical background to burial practices. At the same time it aims to familiarize students with methodologies that focus on the relations between the burial record and the evidence of the living society. On completion of the module students will have acquired a series of analytical tools which enables them to reflect critically on the specific nature of both worlds and on the particularities that combine them or set them apart.

Inhoud vak
This seminar is designed to gain insight into the relations between the world of the dead and that of the living focusing on the Mediterranean world in the first millennium BC. Burial practices offering interesting views on the ways the dead were treated will be studied in relation to the material record of the living in order to acquire a better understanding of the ancient societies under study.

Onderwijsvorm
The course consists of 7 weeks of teaching (lectures, seminars and discussions based on assigned readings) with meetings two times a week (2 x 2 hours): The course consists of three distinct parts:
1. classes based on assigned literature followed by discussion
2. classes by guest speakers who will lecture on subjects that focus on the relations between the world of the living and the dead, presenting case studies from their own research
3. an assignment for each student in which a specific theme is treated with the application of the theoretical framework discussed during the classes. This has to result in an oral presentation and a written paper before the end of the course

On Monday: there will be regular classes based upon the assigned literature. The Thursday class will be used for seminars by guest speakers, who will discuss case studies from their own experience. This will be followed by a discussion, based on the presentation of the guest speaker and additional literature. One of the students will introduce the guest-speaker and will preside the discussion. The student will undertake individual research on a selected case-study, presenting the results in both oral and written form (5000-7500 words excl. literature and illustrations). More information about the courses and the assignments will be given in the first week of the course
If you are absent from the first class meeting without the lecturer's consent you lose your right to follow the course.
Toetsvorm
Participation in class room discussions, writing a review article, oral presentation of case-study, final written exam tended essay

Literatuur
Will be made available during the course.

Doel vak
Familiarizing students with various methods and techniques of ceramics research, in relation to theory and practice of the study of production, distribution and use of pottery in various societies of the Mediterranean area, from the Neolithic till recent times (but with the focus from the Bronze Age to the Roman period). On completion of the module students will have acquired a series of analytical tools which enables them to reflect critically on existing work, but also to use ceramic research as part of their own archaeological work, in academia or in field archaeology.

Inhoud vak
Pottery is the material most frequently encountered in archaeology research project. It helps dating, inspires thoughts about contacts between areas, and is a starting point for reconstructing social structures and/or their ideological frameworks. By looking at various methods of pottery research (in some specific cases) and their theoretical background, the ways pottery can be used in thinking about aspects of production, distribution and use and meaning will be explored, while at the same time insights and practical tools for hands on study of the material will be taken into account. More specific themes and methods to be treated include: typology, chronology and their problems; techniques and social organization of pottery production and their interconnection; the interaction between producers and consumers of pottery; scientific and anthropological approaches to pottery. All this will be placed in a more general background regarding social and cultural theory on daily material culture and the interaction between materials, objects and people, and the ways these can and cannot be used in archaeology.

Doel vak
Rome is the city par excellence to study the complex interrelations between urban development, heritage politics, the preservation and transformation of cultural heritage. The aim of this course is a better understanding of the historical roles that cultural heritage has fulfilled within the broader framework of national and European identity.
construction. Next to that, the students develop their own view of how ancient and recent heritage can be preserved and transformed within a setting of urban dynamism and rapid transformations.

Inhoud vak

Rome is one of the oldest cities in Europe and its cultural heritage embodies classical and modern ideals, which have left their imprint on the city. But its appearance and structure are also shaped by the daily realities typical of an ever expanding Mediterranean metropolis. Rome is a city of contrasts where old and new, past and present, come together and sometimes clash.

The course elaborates on the following themes:
1. Sites and monuments: Making the students familiar with the major sites, monuments and urbanistic interventions in Rome
3. Heritage, politics and nationalism: History of the use of the heritage of Rome for national and other political purposes.
4. Urban development: History of the urban development of Rome and its problematic relation to archaeology
5. Heritage, History and the Public: Ethics and methods of communication with the audience.
6. Challenges for future management: Marrying urban development with heritage management; new heritage concepts (landscape), urban landscape archaeology, outreach, heritage management and citizenship.
7. Design Interventions: programming old and new functions and spatial claims of stakeholders and preparing interventions for/with designers.

Onderwijsvorm

An introductory seminar and a three-days crash course on heritage issues and Rome’s history and topography will be presented at Amsterdam for students from Dutch universities (20th, 21st and 22nd of April 2016). Students studying at non-Dutch universities only participate in the ten-days excursion to Rome (10th - 22th of June 2016).

Toetsvorm

On-site oral presentations, active contribution to plenary discussions, assignments and a reflective essay. The complexity of the topic of discussion varies according to the student’s curriculum. Participants receive credit after submitting their final paper.

Literatuur

Reader.

Vereiste voorkennis

The course is a joint initiative of CLUE+, the Royal Netherlands Institute in Rome (KNIR), the master Heritage Studies at VU University Amsterdam and Herity International. It is open for credit to 20 students from the Netherlands and abroad (in particular Master and Research Master students), with an interest in the relation between Archaeology, (Art and Architectural) History, Heritage Studies and Urban Planning and Urban or Landscape Design. Students are asked to write an application letter, containing their motivation, education, c.v. and list of marks and to fill in an application form. Students have to register through the website of the KNIR by using the following url (www.knir.it/nl/meld-je-aan.html). The deadline for registration is 25th of January 2016. Selection (of a maximum of 20 students) will close on the 1st of February 2016 at the latest.
Doelgroep
Master students Heritage of universities in Europa and America. Students are selected!

Overige informatie
The course is 9 ects for students from Dutch universities and 7 ects for students studying abroad (who don't take the three day course in Amsterdam).

Application and Enrolment
Non-VU University students (Dutch and Foreign), who are selected, have to subscribe as a subsidiary student at VU University Amsterdam, also if you are already a subsidiary student at a Dutch university. For information and rules about the enrolment as subsidiary student please visit: http://www.vu.nl/en/programmes/admission-and-application/registration-secondary-courses/index.asp

Facilities in Rome
Students from Dutch universities will be housed in the Royal Netherlands Institute in the Villa Borghese Park, the other students in a pension nearby. From there, it is only a short walk to the historical center of Rome. The accommodation consists of shared bedrooms (bedding and towels are present) and includes a bathroom, washing machine and wireless internet. Furthermore, all participants have access to the library of the Royal Netherlands Institute. No meals are provided, but the accommodation includes ample cooking facilities. Students are responsible for their own airfare and travel to Rome, meals and other consumptions.

Fees
1. €700,- for all those who are not a (subsidiary) student at the VU University Amsterdam, University of Groningen, University of Leiden, University of Amsterdam, Radboud University Nijmegen or Utrecht University, needing accommodation in Rome.
2. €350,- for students living in Rome, NOT needing accommodation. This sum covers the educational fees.
3. €150,- for students (Dutch or foreign) studying at the above mentioned universities; these students are exempted from paying the educational fees of €350,-.

The above includes tuition fees, accommodation, most excursions (including most entry fees for museums and archeological sites) and a syllabus with course material. Travel expenses and meals are excluded.

Netherlands; knowledge of the genealogy and history of the term heritage; knowledge of the various opinions on archaeological and landscape heritage in the past decades; critical reflection on the use of the term heritage in contemporary (archaeological) preservation policies and the management of historical landscapes.

Inhoud vak

In these introductive lectures theoretical, historiographical and practical topics are dealt with, that are connected with the interest and the care for historical landscapes and archaeological heritage. In the theoretical part, among other matters, attention will be paid to recent heritage opinions. The historiographic part treats the history of the archeological heritage policies and the interest in the historical natural and cultural landscape. Practical training contains the programs and legal rules and regulations for dealing with landscapes and archaeological monuments, like methods of valuation and selecting, restoration and re-destining and preservation.

The course consists of lectures. Discussions will be stimulated by image material like tv-documentaries.

Doel vak
The course aims to explore the interrelationships between textual, archaeological and anthropological sources of information. At the end of the course, you will have acquired a more profound knowledge of early Greek culture and will be able to place this in a wider Mediterranean framework.

Inhoud vak
In this course we will focus on the interconnections between the Homeric epics and archaeology. In an introductory lecture the research topic and the course’s main aims will be defined. During the following two sessions we will discuss the problem of the historicity of the epics. The remainder of the course will be devoted to specific aspects of material culture in the Iliad and Odyssey, more in particular their functioning and socio-cultural significance. Examples of themes that we will discuss are objects and exchanges, social structures, warfare, and death, burial rituals and afterlife. We will also reflect on the connections with the wider Mediterranean world. We will look at, for instance, cultural encounters and aspects of identity (the self vs. the culturally other) in the epics and how these may be related to contemporary ‘protocolonial’ experiences. A number of times we use video material that offers anthropological comparanda for, for instance, warfare and exchanges in non-Western societies. These archaeological and anthropological insights we will use to analyse parts of the Iliad and Odyssey (in translation).

Onderwijsvorm
Students prepare topics by means of close reading of academic texts and present their viewpoints during weekly plenary discussion sessions and in a short written report (ca. 3 pages). This series of papers provides the basis for writing a final essay in which general conclusions are drawn regarding the interdisciplinary study of the society that produced the Homeric epics.

Toetsvorm
Participation in class room discussions and weekly written reports, (short) final essay.

Literatuur

Late Iron Age Societies in North Western Europe

Vakcode L_BEMAARC015 ()
Upon successful completion of this course, you will:
1. have a deep knowledge of, and insight into the structure and development of Late Iron Age societies in North Western Europe.
2. have an extensive knowledge of the actual debate about the major social changes in Late Iron Age societies as well as of theories and concepts relevant for the explanation of these changes. This course also provides a firm basis for understanding the social and cultural transformation of Celto-Germanic societies after their integration into the Roman empire.

The course starts with an introductory lecture in which the main research topics and the organisation of the course are outlined. In the following lectures we will discuss specific themes of research, including material culture and the ethnic debate, Oppida and the urbanisation process in pre-Roman Gaul, Diffusion and social role of Iron Age coinage; Cult places and their material culture, Material culture studies: the case of glass La Tène bracelets, Mediterranean connectivity: the wine consumption in Late Iron Age Gaul. The final meetings will be used for the presentation of essays by students. Key concepts: ethnicity, state formation, urbanisation, Laténisation, connectivity with the Mediterranean world.

Lectures, guest-lectures, class room discussions

Written essay (70%), participation in class room discussions (10%), oral presentation (20%).

Will be made available during the course.

Students admitted to one of the following Master’s programmes can take this course: Archaeology (all three programmes) or Classics and Ancient Civilizations (all three programmes)

Core course for Master students following the specialisation Late Iron Age and Roman archaeology of the programme Archaeology North Western Europe.
Doel vak
The course is aimed at the acquisition and application of practical research skills in epigraphic research. You will learn to read original epigraphic texts, get familiar with the Latin of inscriptions including the most typical abbreviations used in such texts, and learn to apply the rules of transcription correctly. You will gain advanced knowledge of handbooks, corpora and electronic databases of Latin epigraphy and learn how to use them for your own thesis or other research project effectively.

Inhoud vak
The course offers an intensive introduction into Latin epigraphy from the Republican period up until Late Antiquity. Its approach and focus is strongly interdisciplinary with attention being paid to philological, socio-linguistic, literary, archaeological, and juridical aspects of epigraphic texts. In addition, explicit attention will be paid to the theoretical and methodological aspects of epigraphic research. Topics which will be dealt with are as diverse as funerary monuments and commemoration of the dead, family relationships and Roman law of succession, text and spatial context, epigraphy and the administration of the Roman empire, patronage and professional colleges, content and organization of private and public cults. The focus will be on inscriptions from Rome and Ostia, but for reasons of comparison also epigraphic texts from the rest of Italy and the provinces will be drawn in.

Onderwijsvorm
The main part of the course is set up as a ten days' intensive seminar which will take place at the Royal Netherlands Institute in Rome (KNIR). The course comprises individual study and research (under supervision) in the library of the KNIR (and some neighbouring foreign institutes), alternated with lectures, museum and site visits in Rome and Ostia, and a city walk along monuments with in situ preserved ancient inscriptions. The seminar in Rome is preceded by a two days' introduction at the VU campus.

Toetsvorm
Oral presentation and paper containing a text edition and commentary on one or more inscriptions from Rome or Ostia.

Literatuur
Will be made available through Blackboard.
Vereiste voorkennis
Command of Latin at highschool exam level (VWO eindexamen).

Doelgroep
MA students as well as Research MA and Phd students in Ancient History, Classics, Archaeology and Law as well as others who take a special interest in Latin epigraphy and meet the entry requirements.

Overige informatie
This is an inter-universitary master’s course which will be offered in cooperation with the Royal Netherlands Institute in Rome, the Research school OIKOS and the Masterlanguage programme of Classics. Interested students will be asked to register through a special registration form which will be made available in the autumn of 2015 through the website of the Royal Netherlands Institute (www.knir.it); classicists also need to register through the masterlanguage website (www.masterlanguage.nl). The course can take up to fifteen students. In case more candidates register, a selection will be made; a motivation letter may be used as a means for selection. The study load is the equivalent of 5 ects; students from VU or UvA may take an additional assignment to the equivalent of 1 ects.

For all participants free accommodation in Rome will be arranged.

This course is taught in collaboration with Prof. B.H. Stolte (RUG).

Upon successful completion of this course, you will: have acquired a general knowledge of the western discourse on the 'transformative powers' of money in (Ancient and Medieval) society; have acquired an extensive view of the key themes in the debate on the use of money in Ancient and Medieval societies; have learned to take your own position in the debate on these topics; have learned to make use of different types of evidence and combine them in synthetical research; understand how to apply different methodologies to different kinds of research questions; be able to design and conduct your own research in a case study of your choice and write a paper on it.

Inhoud vak
Money has always been regarded as having a profound impact on the societies which made use of it. This course is focused on the emergence and spread of money in Ancient and Medieval societies, and its wide... repertoires of use. This will be treated from the perspective of several ‘hot issues’ in economic and numismatic research regarding societies our archaeological departments cover: monetization and its impact on the economy and society; the structure of governmental finance in Classical Athens and the Roman Empire, banks and the role of credit, ritual use of money, money and propaganda and the impact of Roman money on societies in the northwestern Empire. The selected themes are intended to give as wide as possible scope on the vastness of numismatic research and archaeological and historical research involving coinage, and serve simultaneously as case studies for different methodological approaches used in this field. Special attention will be paid to the use of quantitative methods, anthropological theories of money and the use of various source materials: archaeological evidence (coins and other material culture) and ancient texts (literary texts and epigraphy).

Onderwijsvorm

Doel vak
• Understanding of theoretical concepts and approaches in current landscape research: processual, interpretative, phenomenological concepts
• Understanding of science-based concepts of landscape research: geomorphology and soil system sciences
• Competence in applying these combined concepts and approaches to specific case studies in European and Near Eastern Archaeology

Inhoud vak
The course focuses on the following key issues and research questions:

• How do we look at past landscapes within an archaeological framework?
• What characterizes the different methodological-like new processual, phenomenological, hermeneutic and Annaliste-approaches in landscape archaeology?
• What are the underlying concepts? What is the contribution of natural and cultural processes to the end product ‘landscape’?
• How do we apply these approaches in our own research?

These issues and questions are discussed with the help of cases taken from Northwest-European, Scandinavian and Mediterranean archaeology.

Doel vak
Training the student's capacities to reflect on the main heritage topics of the course from different angles;
Training the students in communication (listening, interviewing, argumentation, debating) with guest lecturers (this part will be graded);
Reading about 600 pages text on the main topics, which will be tested in a written exam at the end of the course (this part will be graded).

Inhoud vak
Western countries have a long tradition of listing and therefore canonizing history as expressed by monuments, ensembles and landscapes according to scientific, historical and/or aesthetic criteria, mostly legitimized by expert knowledge. A system of international listing, stimulated and decided on by UNESCO, has a shorter and more contested tradition. What are the ins and outs of the system? Is there an alternative, truly international non-listing system paying tribute to transnational, predominantly 20th century events, products, concepts, cityscapes and landscapes, standing out in the international order of the last century?

Onderwijsvorm
Presentations by guest lecturers;
Students are obliged to read the specified literature individually before the lectures and prepare in groups questions for the interview with the lecturer after the presentation;
Studying about 600 pages which will be examined at the end of the course.
Grading 30%: Interview
The basic idea is the endeavor to have an exciting debate with the (guest) lecturer. Procedure for actions by the students:
1. Each student prepares two questions after analyzing the texts that are connected to the (guest) lecture and proposes questions. A combination or the best of them should be selected and presented to the lecturer. Keep some questions as reserve.
Grading as such: The following criteria will be used by the coördinator of the course:
a. Quality of the questions: relation with the content of the texts that are studied and clarity and depth/range of the questions;
b. Argumentation and capacity to discuss with the lecturer.
The groups will get feedback via Blackboard after every weekly discussion.

Toetsvorm
a. During the course Group will prepare the debate with the guest lecturers (grades count for 30%);
b. At the end of the course individual grades will be given for the written exam.

Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam - Faculteit der Geesteswetenschappen - M Archeologie - 2015-2016
3-5-2016 - Pagina 22 van 32
Doel vak
Kennis opdoen van recent archeologisch onderzoek en het kritisch evalueren daarvan.

Inhoud vak
Gedurende periode 1 t/m 5 zal een lezingenreeks georganiseerd worden waarin recent archeologisch onderzoek gepresenteerd wordt dat nauw aansluit bij het kernonderzoek van het ACVU. Hierin zal zowel VU-archeologen alsook sprekers van buiten optreden. Elke lezing heeft een expliciet theoretische insteek en duurt niet langer dan een uur zodat er voldoende tijd overblijft voor discussie. Studenten worden geacht deze lezingen bij te wonen en kritisch te evalueren.

Onderwijsvorm
De collegereeks begint met een introducerend college waarin de opzet van de cursus wordt toegelicht en waarin ook wordt uitgelegd wat responderen is en hoe je een goed 'review article' schrijft. Vervolgens zal deze theoretische kennis in de praktijk worden geoefend. Tijdens elke lezing zullen twee studenten responderen. Ter voorbereiding op deze taak verdiepen studenten zich in het onderwerp van de lezing door middel van het bestuderen van een aantal relevante artikelen. Op basis daarvan worden een aantal discussiepunten en vragen opgesteld die voorafgaand aan de lezing bij een van de stafleden worden ingeleverd. Deze zal de relevantie en kwaliteit ervan beoordelen en bespreken. Uiteindelijk schrijven de studenten een 'review article' (4000 woorden) waarin een kritische beschouwing wordt gegeven van een van de lezingen. In het 'review article' wordt het gepresenteerde onderzoek afgezet tegen andere studies die over dat of een daaraan verwant onderwerp verschenen zijn.

Toetsvorm
Beoordeling: deelname aan de discussie, responderen (20%) en het schrijven van een 'review article' (80%).

Literatuur
Artikelen (worden op het eerste college bekendgemaakt).

Vereiste voorkennis
Bachelordiploma Archeologie of Oudheidkunde.

Doelgroep
Master studenten Archeologie (verplicht) en Oudheidkunde, MPhil-studenten Oudheidstudies.

The Analysis and Publication of Fieldwork Data

Vakcode L_BEMAARC011 ()
Doel vak
To learn how to describe, analyse and interpret fieldwork data and to record the outcomes in a report that meets standards of scientific publication.

Inhoud vak
This course offers you hands-on training in working with data obtained from archaeological fieldwork. You learn how to analyse and publish pottery or other finds from excavations or surveys, but you may also chose to work with other kinds of data sets that have been generated by fieldwork, including interpreting data from remote sensing, making GIS analyses etc.

Onderwijsvorm

Doel vak
To acquire knowledge on the urban development process in nine successive periods from 1175 to 2000 in relation to political, religious, social and cultural factors of interest. To gain basic insight on material culture as an archaeological dataset of relevance in reconstructing urban life. To get an introduction on the interaction on urban development of Amsterdam and Dutch maritime expansion activities. To gain experience with the multidisciplinary method of Early Modern urban archaeology, using and combining different datasets of both material and historical nature.

Inhoud vak
The course starts with lectures on the urban characteristics and the 1175-2000 development process of Amsterdam. Emphasis will be on the interactive and multidisciplinary approach of urban archaeology using material culture and topographical data. The chronological ceramic spectrum based on the finds of over 200 sites will fulfill a central role in illustrating the significance of ceramics in society in relation to the meaning of ceramic data as material source. Historical maps will be discussed as primary spatial source, also including digital GIS applications. Regarding archaeological thematic topics in Amsterdam urban development focus will be on landfill. The role of landfill in the process of urban extensions of Amsterdam is discussed as well as the meaning of refuse from these archaeological features for our material culture knowledge. The archaeology of Amsterdam, being the core of the 16-18th-century global shipping network, is interrelated with maritime expansion. Some maritime archaeological finds are presented to discuss VOC-ships as material data sources on the trade and production of Amsterdam in the 17th and 18th century.

Onderwijsvorm
Friday morning 9AM-1PM: 1 x 2 hours lecture a week, 1 x 2 hour a week lecture, seminar or workshop, for example workshop in the City Archive and in the office of Monuments and Archaeology, City of Amsterdam

Toetsvorm
Halfway an assignment (2 parts) consisting of an illustrated reports (ca 1500 words) combined with an oral presentation. A separate concluding essay (1.500 words) based on a topic of the course. Papers will be assessed on content, structure and language. Active participation of seminars.

Literatuur
As handbook the publication will be used Gawronski, J. (ed.), 2012, Amsterdam Ceramics. A city’s history and an archaeological ceramics catalogue 1175-2011. Amsterdam. Literature will be announced and made available on Blackboard.

Doel vak
If you successfully complete the course, you will:
1. have acquired a basic knowledge of the most important theoretical approaches and methodologies used by archaeologists to study armed conflicts in the past
2. have shown the ability to connect these theoretical and methodological approaches to concrete cases and reflect critically about the ways archaeologists (or historians) have applied them
3. have acquired a deeper knowledge of the materiality of conflict in a specific time period and/or region
4. be able to write a theoretically informed paper in which the above objectives are realized.

Inhoud vak
In the past two decades we have witnessed the rapid development of a new field of archaeological research, commonly labelled as conflict archaeology. It has its origins in the study of battlefields and other conflict-related phenomena in the modern and pre-modern periods, but numerous studies have already made clear that this theme, its methods, techniques and theories are also relevant for older historical and even prehistoric periods. However, the material dimension of mass violence and conflict still is an underexplored field of study. This course aims to give an up-to-date overview of the potentials, the scope and the limitations of conflict archaeology. We will discuss a broad range of topics from the prehistoric period up to the Second World War, and have a focus on methodological and theoretical issues. Questions that will be addressed are: how can we identify battlefields?, how essential is the availability of documentary evidence? What is the potential of a landscape-archaeological approach in this field of research? Has archaeology something to offer to the study of genocide in the past? How important are ritual depositions related to conflict?

Onderwijsvorm

The Objects of Religion: Material Culture at Sanctuaries
Doel vak
Students who will have successfully completed this course will
1.) have a good understanding of religion in Etruria and Rome;
2.) have acquired a thorough knowledge of the symbolic nature and potential multivocality of material culture;
3.) have developed a methodology to interpret a case study;
4.) have the ability to write a concise and clearly structured paper with a well-focused argument.

Inhoud vak
This course focuses on the interpretation of material culture from sanctuaries in Etruria, Republican Rome and Italy, and the Mediterranean provinces of the Roman empire. Most finds from these sanctuaries will have played a role in the religious communication between man and god.
While it thus may be assumed that many finds had a strong symbolic dimension, excavation reports often do not reach beyond basic descriptions of the finds themselves. In the introductory lecture to the course, several competing models of interpretation will be presented and a methodology that might help us to decipher the codes of the material culture from sanctuaries will be discussed. This will be followed by two meetings where we will discuss theoretical literature on the anthropology of religion and on the religion of Etruria and Rome. The remaining meetings will be used for oral presentations in which students present their own interpretation of a pre-selected site. All participants subsequently write an essay on the subject of their oral presentation.

Onderwijsvorm
Lectures, class room discussions and oral presentations with discussion and feedback from the instructors.

Toetsvorm
Oral presentation, participation in class room discussions, final essay.

Literatuur
Will be made available during the course.

Doel vak
If you successfully complete the course, you will:
1. have acquired a profound knowledge of the most important theoretical approaches that have been used by archaeologists and historians to study the Roman countryside
2. have shown the ability to connect these theoretical approaches to concrete cases and reflect critically about the ways archaeologists or historians have applied them
3. have acquired a deeper knowledge of the Roman countryside in one region of the Roman empire
4. have learnt how to write a critical review according to the academic standards of the profession of a new academic study on the Roman countryside

Inhoud vak
Even if the monumental remains of Roman villas first drew the attention of archaeologists as early as the 17th or 18th centuries, the Roman countryside as a separate and coherent field of study has emerged only fairly recently. Systematic study of the rural world of the Roman empire first developed after World War II, when in many different areas of the empire survey projects were set up which aimed at a better understanding of the organization of the landscape. In recent decades, in many European countries rescue excavations have added an enormous wealth of new data partly on hitherto under-researched parts of the countryside.

In this course, we will explore the different theoretical approaches and perspectives that archaeologists have adopted in the past to interpret the available data on the Roman countryside. We will also look at political, economic, social and religious organization of the landscape and the transformations thereof. Key concepts are Romanisation, postcolonialism and cultural hybridity. Topics to be dealt with in the lectures are the political impact of empire on land holding and land division, the integration of marginal landscapes in the Roman empire and the religious organization of the countryside. Examples in the lectures will be mainly taken from the northwestern provinces, but attention will also be paid to the Mediterranean.

Onderwijsvorm
Four introductory lectures followed by classroom discussions and two or three sessions with presentations of student papers

Toetsvorm
Participation in classroom discussions (20%), assignments (20%), final review (2000 wrds) (60%)

Literatuur
Will be announced at the first meeting

Vereiste voorkennis
Bachelor archaeology, bachelor ancient history

Doelgroep
Master students archaeology or ancient history

Overige informatie
The course will be concluded with a final session on the Graduate Seminar Late January.

Doel vak
Uitvoeren van onderzoek naar een gespecialiseerd onderwerp of thema uit de archeologie of landschapsarcheologie van het Mediterrane gebied, dat uitmondt in een wetenschappelijk verslag. Met je scriptie geef je er blijk van in staat te zijn volgens wetenschappelijke normen archeologisch onderzoek te doen dan wel in de studie een eigen visie op (de omgang met) archeologische data te hebben ontwikkeld.

Onderwijsvorm
Individuele begeleiding. Student kiest een onderwerp en legt dit ter goedkeuring voor aan een van de docenten. Na goedkeuring wordt vastgesteld welke docent als eerste en welke als tweede begeleider optreedt.

Toetsvorm
De eindscriptie wordt door twee docenten gelezen. Het eindpunt wordt door beide docenten in onderling overleg vastgesteld. Criteria zijn: originaliteit, logische redeneerstijl, heldere opbouw van het betoog, goede schrijfstijl, adequate verwijzingen naar bronnen en literatuur, adequaat gebruik van illustratiemateriaal (indien relevant).

Doel vak
Het verrichten van zelfstandig onderzoek over een thema uit de late prehistorie, Romeinse archeologie of landschapsarcheologie van West-Europa, resulterend in een scriptie. Met deze scriptie zal de student laten zien dat hij in staat is om onderzoek te doen op academisch niveau en zijn eigen zienswijze te ontwikkelen hoe om te gaan met archeologische data.

Onderwijsvorm
Individuele begeleiding. Student kiest eerst een onderwerp en legt dit ter goedkeuring voor aan een van de docenten. Na goedkeuring wordt vastgesteld welke docent als eerste en welke als tweede begeleider optreedt.

Trade and Exchange in the Medieval and Early Modern Period

Vakcode L_AAMAARC010 ()
Periode Periode 1
Credits 6.0
Voertaal Engels
Faculteit Faculteit der Geesteswetenschappen
Doel vak
After this module the student has knowledge of the development of exchange systems during the middle ages and early modern period in western Europe recognizes the main areas of research within the field has the competence to formulate research questions.

Inhoud vak
The study of consumption, production, and demand has always been at the heart of medieval and early modern archaeology. In this module we will evaluate a range of exchange mechanisms by which objects and commodities changed hands throughout these periods. We will not only look at a number of concrete examples, but also study some general theories behind exchange systems in the past. We will make a journey through time as we start in post-Roman Europe, after which attention moves to the world of large trading settlements in north-western Europe and the collapse of this system. Closely linked to the study of exchange is the emergence of towns and markets, which come to play an important role in the post-Carolingian world and later Middle Ages. The course will go on to explore the archaeology of the Hanseatic League, and the growth of mercantile capitalism, and will conclude with an examination of world systems theory, the expansion of European trade, and global interactions in the early modern period.
